Atonement, Faith Set Theme For Tuesday Devotional Talk

by Ron Safsten

"We have no right to do wrong" stated Elder Joseph Fielding Smith, President of the Council of Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints at Smith Fieldhouse Tuesday.

"No man has the right to violate God's commandments," he went on.

Speaking to 2026 students and guests he stressed man's free agency which gives him the privilege to transgress.

Free agency man's power to make his own dedications, according to Elder Smith, a noted scriptural authority, is one of the greatest gifts of God to man.

"Satan's plan was a fallacy. It compelled men—like machines —to be saved."

"No man could be punished or rewarded if he had no agency," Elder Smith went on.

He noted that men will be judged according to their works and that there would be no need for Brigham Young University if men couldn't do their own thinking.

Elder Smith stressed that our bodies are bought by the blood of Jesus Christ. We were redeemed by the mercy of our Heavenly Father and the Atonement.

"When I think of him taking that burden of sin, I want to keep his commandment . . . I want to love him. That's what's commanded of us," Elder Smith stated.

"We belong to him He can tell us what to do; He can punish and He can reward"

June 10 To Begin Provo Sessions Of Summer School

Applications for admission to summer school are now being accepted, according to Bliss Crandall, Dean of Admissions and Records.

Two summer school sessions will be held, the first starting June 10, the second starting July 15.

Persons wishing to attend summer classes must make application in the admissions office, 180 Maeser Building. Registration permits and packets will then be made up.

Admission to one session will be $40 including $12.50 for fees. Cost for both sessions will be $80

A class schedule listing summer classes will be on sale in the bookstore soon, according to Crandall.

All undergraduate colleges and the Graduate School offer a full quarter of work during the summer period. In special cases students may attend only part of the summer if they desire without hindrance to the completion of their courses.

V.A. Representative Visits Provo Area

Thomas R Buttrey, contact representative from the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Salt Lake City, will be at the Provo State Employment Office, 295 W. 1st North, on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p m.

Veterans may consult him concerning veteran benefits, such as schooling, GI insurance, compensation, pension, or GI loans, according to Vila Olsen, campus veteran coordinator.

U.S. Discusses Open Sky Plan Of Soviet Union

WASHINGTON — INS — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States is "thinking" of creating with Russia a mutual aerial inspection zone covering part of the vast Arctic area, Alaska, Siberia and Canada.

Dulles also told his news conference that there is a possibility of a similar zone being developed in Europe but such a move would be more difficult.

He said the pitfalls in the way of a solution are "considerably greater" in Europe than in other areas "both because of the political implications and because of the greater number of countries involved."

An "open skies" accord over the less populated Arctic area, Dulles explained, poses fewer problems and could be achieved bilaterally with Russia.

Dulles added that Canada has indicated that it is sympathetically disposed to joining in the step.

Britsch Receives Appointment

Professor Ralph A. Britsch of the Department of English has been appointed chairman of the department, replacing Dr. Leonard W. Rice who was recently appointed Dean of the College of Humanities.

Britsch was graduated from Brigham Young University with an A.B. in 1933 and later obtained his M.A. at BYU. He did graduate work at the Universities of Wisconsin, Washington, and Oklahoma.

The new department head taught school at high schools in Gunnison and Provo before coming to teach at BYU in 1938.

He has been active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and has been Bishop of the Park Ward, Utah Stake, for the past five years.

Victorian Literature and World Literature are of special interest to Prof. Britsch in the field of English. For a number of years he was a member of the Faculty Male Quartet, and he is now directing a ward male chorus, "The Couriers of Song."

Two Presidents Reveal AMS, AWS Councils

The Associated Men Students and Associated Women Students have announced next year's councils.

The AMS council under the presidency of Talmage Bird are Dick Thatcher, Ted Sandburg, Clark Whitehead, Brad Powell, Don Van Noy, Gene Jones and Russell E. Relyea.

Other members are Keith Hart, Dave Farr, Norman Smith, John Stohtlon, Harvey Merkley, Marvin Wrigley, Larry Regis and Rich Hall.

Paul Anderson will serve as vice president and Mike Brown will serve as secretary-treasurer.

New officers for AWS are Janis Hull, president; Glenna Cooper, vice president; Joyce Stevenson, secretary, and Janelle Brimhall, treasurer.

Miss Hull announced the A.W.S. council for next year. Members are Pat Brighton, Kathy McDonald, Jane White, Darlene Brown, Joan Blodgett, Donna Daniels, Corena Miller, Carolyn Wilson, Laura Lee Brown, Mary Beth Clark, Ruth Redford and Charlotte Chadwick. Eve McKinght is president of the interhouse council and Linda Redd is A.W.S. chairman of off campus housing.

Studentbody activities sponsored by the AMS include Fight Nite, Autumn Leaf Hike and Dance, and Snow Carnival.

They award a scholarship trophy to the men's social unit with the highest grade point average each quarter. With the AWS they co-sponsor the Christmas Drive and co-chairman Y Day.

Next fall AMS assists in Freshman Orientation by supplying a shuttle service for incoming students at transportation depots and information booths on campus.

AWS take charge of Preference Ball, transfer and foreign student parties, the Songfest and off-campus housing. Coed of the Month and Leadership and Service Trophy awards are granted by the AWS. A radio program is put on by the council. Also they visit patients in the McDonald Health Center.

Now the AWS are working on a booklet which will be sent to next year's freshmen girls during the summer. They also sponsor the Big Sister program.

Bach Work Inspires Production

Brigham Young University Choral Union and Symphony Orchestra will combine under the baton of Ralph Woodward to present Mass in B Minor by Bach in the Smith Fieldhouse, Thursday, 8:15 p.m.

The mass is ranked as one of the greatest of Bach's works and considered by many as one of the greatest masterpieces of choral music. This performance will be the largest single work attempted to date by the BYU Music Department.

A fervent Lutheran, Bach found in the form of the mass the transcendent possibilities of expression for his deep faith. The two-hour long mass has been cut to approximately 100 minutes for the performance.

Choral Union was formed last autumn for the sole purpose of giving students an opportunity to perform the great choral masterpieces. Its nearly 600 members are drawn from other major choruses on campus.

Soloists for the Thursday performance will include tenor Brandt Curtis and soprano Margaret Barclay Woodward, both faculty members.

Graduate student soloists will be messo-soprano Ila Lou Elison, last seen at BYU as Carmen in Bizet's opera, and baritone Richard Robinson, veteran of Fred Waring's "Festival of Song" organization and nine years with the Tabernacle Choir.

Other soloists are undergraduates Betty Hoover and Doreen Kurr, sopranos.

Tickets On Sale For Senior Meal

Tickets for the traditional Senior Breakfast will go on sale in Eyring Science Center and Smith Building lobbies Monday from 9 a. m. to 1 p m.

Cost of the tickets is 50 cents. Sales are scheduled to continue through the week, according to Carl Mitchell, junior class president.

The breakfast is given annually by the junior class for graduating seniors and guests This year it will feature speeches by Ernest L Wilkinson, president of Brigham Young University, and Dr. Henry Isaksen, Student Coordinator.

Other activities planned are toasts to the graduates and the induction of seniors to the Alumni Association.

Honor

Dear Editor,

Japan's Sondai University sent to campus the other day their student relations expert, Mister Asakawa, During the course of discussion, the guest became intently interested in our Honor System. (His comments showed great insight).

"In Japan," he said, discipline means only punishment. But here, discipline means education—punishment is the last thing you want to use."

"I think," he continued, "this shows clearly in your Honor System. The last thing you want to do is to punish. You would so much rather counsel first and only in extreme cases use punishment."

He then observed that the reason for this seems to be strong feelings of social obligation among Americans, and most especially, among Mormons. Among the Japanese, feelings of obligation toward others have traditionally bee strictly limited to the family and few close friends only. He said he was sure our western social ideas would in time replace their traditional values.

Love

Dear Brigadoon Critic and any one who agrees with him,

I believe your criticism on one particular point needs to be explained "His (meaning Dr. Woodbury) movements and speaking were all to mechanical and his feelings were unnatural. In the love scenes between him and Miss Johnson one seemed to have the ever-present feeling that Dr Woodbury was a married man" Most certainly he would seem like a married man —because he is! And one to be much admired.

Dr. Woodbury happens to be a man who is very much devoted and in love with his wife If you were married and deeply in love, I believe you too would have trouble trying to be passionate with someone else if your moral sense were so motivated by our religion and life-teachings to be so inclined.

Donna Hibbert

Neglected

Dear Editor:

In the critique of Brigadoon, Dick Kramer did an excellent job of touching on the high points of the production but he neglected one particularly fine performance

The acting and singing of Louise Johnson as Fiona was outstanding and perhaps carried the entire show. She gave a natural lilt and sparkle to her portrayal that comes only from someone extremely talented.

In her singing Miss Johnson also shone. Her voice was excellent, well trained and of good quality. She managed to instill into the lyrics she sang just enough of a Scottish burr to make them pleasing but never false.

It is a shame that Miss Johnson and her excellent performance were given so little consideration and other parts of the program, which were of lesser quality ,were given more space than they deserved.

Sincerely,

Ralph D. Barney

WHERE'S YOUR SPUNK?

Apathy on college campuses is a theme sounded every year by studentbody leaders and editorial writers alike. However, at Brigham Young University the case has been relatively different . . . that is until our population exploded into startosphereic figures and school spirit became watered-down.

LET GEORGE DO IT

Today students have the general feeling that someone else will chairman this committee or the other guy will sign up for that office. At BYU disinterested students are turning down some of the finest opportunities of their lives because of the contagion of "Idon'tcareism" that is invading and tranquillizing our campus.

We often proudly boast of the leadership and general talent so abundant on campus. Yet, it has become most evident that a majority of these leaders and talented ones are saving themselves for an organization other than BYU.

Our student leaders exert untold effort to fill an appointive position or a vacancy, but too many are of the firm opinion that someone else will take the responsibility. With such an attitude prevailing, it stands to reason that many posts will be filled by mediocre parties.

WE ALL HAVE THEM

All of us are talented to some degree. However, the number of people willing to turn talent into good deeds is dwindling alarmingly.

Is BYU too big? This will be a popular question on the lips of many as long as the school exists. The fact is that the university is continuing to grow and, sadly, spirit and student participation are ebbing with the population and building expansion.

BYU STILL TOPS

Of course the case at hand is far from hopeless. Most colleges would give plenty to match our voting percentages in studentbody elections or the general productiveness of the students at BYU.

The problem is to thwart this dip in interest and shoot it back to a healthy level.

A good example of the current trend is the disregard had by students for the campus magazine, the WYE. Literary talent is abundant here, yet the WYE has to scrape and scramble for every inch of copy turned in. In this magazine is offered an opportunity for every fledgling writer to try his wings and see his work in print. Few have or probably will avail themselves of this chance.

A CRUCIAL POINT

Editor Jack Nelson, as much in a quandry over student indifference as others in a position to see it, has publicly requested letters criticizing or outlining desires as far as the magazine is concerned. This may be a crucial point in the existence of the magazine on campus.

How about taking a shot at Nelson and his book? How about taking a stab at one of the many positions in student affairs available for the asking?

'Pearl Harbor" Complex Grows

by Marvin Stone

SEOUL — INS — Pvt. John Smith, U S Army, is in Korea ready to fight—in an outmoded armored car, with an obsolescent recoilless rifle, without the air support he deserves and with his atomic artillery a thousand hopeless miles away.

Enemy Ready

Across a truce demarcation line you can hridge with a shout, his enemy is ready with an illicit arsenal of the most devastatingly modern weapons the Comunist world can provide.

This situation exists simply because the U S meticulously observes a paragraph of the armistice agreement called 13-D, while the Communist Chinese and North Koreans do not

Forbids Arms

This provision strictly forbids either side to bring into Korea types or numbers of weapons which were not in their hands when the shooting stopped on July 27 1953.

By continuously and contemptuously ignoring the ban, the Reds grow relatively stronger each day. The U.S., in effect, is "walking away" from its weapons.

If you think this is remotely a true deal for the 450,000 American combat troops stationed here," said a U.S. general, "I will eat the armistice agreement"

General Nameless

The general must remain nameless because he was discussing a question considered by superiors in Washington to be extremely touchy.

The question: How long will the U.S. and its 145 Korean War allies continue to subject themselves to a manifestly unfair disadvantage tat in effect leaves them with one hand tied behind their backs?

Without exception, top American commanders in the Far East feel that one-sided observance of the weapons ban is grotesquely nonsensical. Thus far they apparently have not been able to convince the State Department, which is concerned with the problem's political overtones.

Complex Grows

The situation is becoming so grave that a "Pearl Harbor" complex is growing.

It the North attacked by surprise and dealt a heavy initial blow against U.S., and ROF forces, which is considered most possible, recriminations would unquestionably follow.

Who would take the blame for what likely would be charges of "unpreparedness" involving inferior weapons against an enemy admittedly known to be breaking the truce?

Ormandy and the Phil- Orchestra treated Pro- d Brigham Young Uni- tudents to an unforget- sical experience Wed- vening certain that almost ev- plimentary adverb has ed to describe their playing, all this reviewer can do is agree with past comments to the effect that their playing left nothing to be desired.

Behavior Lacking

However, the audience's behavior left much to be desired. A great many of the people attending the concert were infected with the slovenly disease, tardiness.

It was particularly disconcerting to see several female latecomers waddle into the opening tympani figure of the Brahms symphony. It makes some persons wonder why such people come at all if they cannot arrive on time and hear all of the performance.

The audience was grateful for the orchestra's superb music, as shown by the standing ovation given the group after the concert, but forgot themselves or showed their ignorance of tradition by clapping between movements of the larger works.

Rule Listed

This is not done, anytime, anywhere. A rule for concert applause that might be used at lyceums is "if in doubt, don't."

It can be added that the precision of the large group was almost flawless in the performance of both classic and modern compositions. There seemed to be no hesitation on the part of the musicians regardless of the difficulty of the passage being performed.

Former Editors Write Feature

Former Daily Universe Editor-in-Chief and managing editor Ralph Barney and Dan Gashler filled the front page and centerspread of the Deseret News Church Section last Saturday with an article and pictures on Hole-in-the-Rock.

The journalists made the trip as part of Clarence Tyndall's motion picture photography class. They left May 3 at 4 a.m. for the long trip to southeastern Utah.

Hole-in-the-Rock is a straight road which was carved in solid rock by a pioneer wagon company to provide an entry way into Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona for early Church settlers. It drops 1000 feet in less than one-half mile to form a path to the Colorado River.

Water backing up from the soon-to-be Glen Canyon Dam will cover the present location of the historical marker near the river. However, the marker will be moved and the man-made lake will provide easier transportation to the site, resulting in many more tourists visiting the area.

The Brigham Young University group made the trip to photograph the location before the area is covered with water. Accompanying them were more than a score of the Albert M. Lyman family.

For the Lyman family it was a nostalgic trek, since Lyman's father, Platte de Alton Lyman, was with the first wagon company to cross at Hole-in-the-Rock. The 70-year old Lyman is presently San Juan Stake Patriarch.

Barney, working for the bureau of the Deseret News, contacted an editor of the Church Section about doing a story on the class trip. He and Gashler collaborated on the article and it was accepted for publication.

It took an ambulance, jeep, two station wagons, pick-up truck and at least three passenger cars to carry the load of students, instructors and paraphenalia. Aside from the frequent stops to replenish the crankcase of the jeep, the trip went off well.

BYU's "Discovery" program on KSL-TV this Sunday will feature highlights of the expedition to Hole-in-the-Rock, and films of the trek will be shown.

The class started making the trips three years ago under the direction of instructor Tyndall. It was Tyndall who also got Patriarch Lyman to accompany the group for the benefit of his knowledge of the area.

Included in the trip, in addition to Tyndall, head of the audio-visual aids department at BYU, and the Lyman family, were Gordon Forsythe, instructor, Jim Martin, AVA employe, Mrs. Afton Porter, AVA film services, and class members Beven Young, Cathy Collard, Jack Lythgoe, Phil Fauver, Dick Hopkinson, Barney and Gashler.

In the early days of Brigham Young University before a budget was set up, students paid their tuition in agricultural products.

BYU Track, Baseball, Tennis Teams See Weekend Action

LANNY NIELSON
. . . varsity golfer

Owing to the all-too-frequent downpours of moisture this spring the sports schedule is somewhat frustrated.

The only sport that has not been rained out is golf, and in that sport, BYU has already sewed up the Western Division championship.

But in all other sports the weatherman has contributed to keeping the division championships up for grabs. Baseball might have been decided had it not been for the postponement of a doubleheader with Utah State several weeks ago. The game has been rescheduled for May 21 at Provo.

Weather permitting, the Cougars will play Montana this Friday in a twin-bill beginning at 1 p.m.

These games are "must" wins if the Cougars are to maintain any chance of winning the Western Division title.

Track will be settled this Saturday when the Western Division meet will be held here at Provo.

The Cougar tracksters will be favored to win on over-all team strength that they have displayed all season. Other teams will include Utah, Montana, and Utah State.

In tennis the Western Division meet is scheduled for Saturday in Salt Lake City, and then some time next week the Cougar netmen will play Utah State at Logan, the date depending upon the weather. In this match the Cats need a win to tie with Utah for the Division title.

The only remaining golf match left on the docket is the Skyline meet May 24-25, at Fort Collins. In this encounter the Cougars, defending champions, will be hard-pressed to beat New Mexico and Colorado A & M.

The Cougars are favored to wind up the spring sports schedule with Division championships in golf and track, with only the track team favored to cop the Skyline crown. But in all spring sports, BYU teams still have a chance mathematically.

Regardless of what the weatherman has in store, Brigham Young is the only school in the Skyline Conference that offered genuine contenders in all spring sports.

Meet The Frosh Football Coach . . .

Tolbert Tutors Frosh Gridders

by Carolyn Harrison
Daily Universe Sports Writer

Coach Harold Kopp has said that Brigham Young University will need two good freshman teams before they can be expected to knock over the "bigger" Skyline clubs.

The burden of bringing these frosh crews along is the weighty responsibility of smiling Max Tolbert. With this task in mind, Coach Tolbert has been a tireless worker in the recruiting program.

A native of Fayetteville, Pa., Tolbert attended Chambersburg High School where he won letters in four sports. He came to BYU in 1948, lettering three seasons in football for the Cougars. Coach Tolbert played offense and defense.

Tolbert supervised baseball and football at Murray High School for three years before joining the BYU staff last year. He is also varsity scout for BYU.

The personable frosh mentor is married to the former Kathy Robertson. Tolbert likes all sports and especially enjoys fishing.

"Muggsy Max" guided last fall's frosh team to the finest season in Kitten history. The burly freshman crew romped to four consecutive wins including a convincing triumph over one of Utah's best frosh teams in years.
